THE DEMOCRATS VICTORIOUS IN THE COUNTY AND STATE!

The returns from the various polls show the election of the entire County Democratic ticket by a handsome majority.

The Republicans put up no State ticket, so that the whole State Democratic ticket is elected almost without opposition, and Hagood is Governor of South Carolina.

This victory should certainly console the Democrats in the loss of Hancock. Important as it is to have the National government Democratic, the County and State governments come nearer to us and more directly affect us. With home rule we can put up with a great many annoyances from abroad.

For the victory won each worker in the party deserves the plaudits of every lover of good and honest government.

THE RESULT.

We have not gained access to the exact returns from the different polls in our County, but enough is known to assure the fact that the Democratic County ticket is elected by a clear majority. We hope to give the figures next week.

THE LATEST.

A synopsis of the latest dispatches show the election of Garfield by a sweeping majority, the solid North being completely arrayed against the solid South.

The United States House of Representatives will probably stand, after March 4th, Republicans, 146; Democrats, 141; Greenbackers 6. Senate, Republicans, 37; Democrats, 39. All the doubtful States went Republican.

The fear of the Solid South was the most potent cause of the Republican success.

THE NATIONAL ELECTION.

The defeat of Hancock did not come as a surprise after the developments of the last month. It was thought at first that the Northern mind had arrived at the point to clasp hands over the bloody chasm. But this was a mistake; and it is probable now that the time will never come for reconciliation between the sections. Blaine, Grant and the other party leaders were shrewd enough to commence the war over, and the effects of their campaign speeches in waving the bloody shirt and picturing the horrors of Southern domination were visible for some time. When Grant said in his little speech in New York, a few days before the election that the Democratic party was the Southern party, and that it needed a solid North to prevent the Southern brigadiers from capturing Washington and the United States, the Northern mind was fixed. The argument was too powerful to resist. It mattered not whether Garfield was dishonest or not, as the McGolyer and Credit Mobilier transactions showed, the Yankees were determined that they would vote for him in preference to a pure and honest man. They do almost as badly as the negroes, who will vote the Republican ticket straight, if a convicted thief is upon it.

One would imagine that the war was over long enough to allay Northern hatred of the South, but we doubt if it will ever cease.

A profitable lesson has been taught us in the National election, and we hope that we will heed it. It is that we must take care of ourselves.

There could not be found throughout the whole range of the Northern States a more highly esteemed citizen in his own section than the hero of Gettysburg, Winfield S. Hancock, but his heinous crime of seeking conciliation between the Northern and Southern sections of the country could not be forgiven, and the reprimand has been administered to him at the polls by the solid North.

We may talk as much as we please about the tariff—we don't believe a word of it. It is the sectional issue, and nothing more.

We are thankful for the lesson. We now understand each other better.

THE PROBLEM.

From now until the next election the problem will be how to maintain in the future the integrity of the government and the civilization of the South. To the solving of this problem let our wisest men devote their serious attention. Our future happiness and prosperity as a people and as individuals depends in no small degree upon the settlement of this question. It is a problem which has been thrust upon us by a prejudiced Northern people for partisan purposes to humiliate the down-trodden South. Northern men tell us that the Republican party is the decent party, of the North, but we ask if the assertion accords with the facts. If this party possessed one tithe of the respectability of which it boasts the terrible ordeal through which we are passing would never have been fastened upon us in its present appalling form. But it is upon us and the question is not why it is inflicted, but how is it to be regulated for the best interest of society. The present strain has reached its utmost tension. It will be hard to continue it longer. Let us look for an improvement, and to this end let all good men direct their thoughts. It is certain that the future policy of the Democratic party will be changed. Conciliation has been tried, and it has signally failed.

REFLECTIONS ON THE ELECTION.

If there is anything that impresses itself upon us in reviewing the election of Tuesday, it is the stubbornness of the colored people in many places, in persisting to keep up the race question, and refusing to harmonize with the whites in the effort for good and honest government. The Democrats have exhausted every means in their power to bring about this harmony and good feeling. No matter what the arguments may be on the Democratic side, many of them will vote for a thief on the Republican ticket in preference to the poorest man on the Democratic ticket. It matters not if he is a rogue of the deepest dye, if he is on the Republican ticket, all his sins are washed away. A freeman would take the tickets, read the names on each, and scratch the rogues and vote for the honest men, but such is the religious fanaticism of a large number of colored men that they will not scratch under any circumstances. They regard the ticket as a sacred thing, never to be touched. It is not polluted, in the least, in their estimation, by thieves and scoundrels being placed upon it, but the pollution of a name being scratched upon it is too heinous to be tolerated. When will the charm be broken? The prospect is—never. Evidently we will have to change base in this thing.

IN MEMORY OF MAJ. J. J. SALLEY.

Whereas, in the inscrutable wisdom of an All-wise Providence, it has pleased Him, "who doeth all things well," to remove from the sphere of his usefulness, our esteemed and beloved brother, Maj. J. J. Salley, and in order that we may pay a just and merited tribute to his memory, therefore it was resolved at the 14th Quarterly Conference of Edisto Circuit, Orangeburg County, S. C. Conference:

First, That a blank page be left in the minutes of said Conference, inscribed to his name and memory.

Second, That in the death of Bro. Salley, the Methodist E. Church South, has lost one of her most useful, high-toned and valuable members, whose life was devoted to her interests, and the promotion of every thing that could conduce to her welfare and prosperity, and which was strictly in accord both private and public, with his profession.

Third, That as a member of the church of his choice, he exemplified the highest type of the earnest and able advocate of her pure and holy doctrines, while his love for the church, and pride in his purity and elevation of tone, made him ever bold and fearless, yet meek and dignified.

Fourth, That we tender to his bereaved family our heartfelt condolence in their sad affliction.

Fifth, That a copy of this be forwarded to his family and be published in the S. C. Advocate, and in the County papers.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT TO MISS NAR. CISSA MINNICKEN—A TOUCHING LITTLE INCIDENT.

Editor Orangeburg Times:

Sometime ago the friends of Capt. J. A. Minnicken and family conceived the idea of erecting a monument to the memory of his daughter. Accordingly a subscription was gotten up and soon sufficient funds were raised to purchase a beautiful marble slab for that purpose.

Upon its arrival at the Ball Swamp Church yard a number of their friends met to present it formally and put it in position.

Maj. G. W. Dannelly was requested to act as spokesman, and said, (as near as can be remembered), as follows:

"Capt. Minnicken and Family—It is with feelings mingled with profound sorrow and pleasure, that we meet here to-day, to present to you this beautiful tablet as a fit memorial to the excellence virtue and social qualities of your loved daughter. We sorrow that she gladdens no more our society. We sorrow that her place is vacant. We sorrow because we miss her merry smiles and genial voice on every hand; and yet it is a pleasure to bestow so fitting a tribute to one who occupied such an exalted position in the hearts of an enlightened community.

"This tablet, sir, is not to perpetuate her memory among those who knew her, not to exalt her many virtues to the present generation, for I assure you, sir, they are inscribed on the tablets of our hearts, more lasting than can be carved on stone or marble; but it is to tell to future generations that worth and virtue flourished here, and that admiring friends have paid just tribute to them. We will now put this tablet in position to mark the spot where sleep your loved daughter, and to warn the passer-by that this is hallowed ground."

With hearts full of deep emotion, the tablet was put in place, and the friends dispersed. B. S.

Edison, Oct. 25, 1880.

Editor Orangeburg Times:

As the time for planting wheat is near at hand, it may not be amiss for me to give you the result of an experiment made by myself last season. We all understand that this has not been considered a wheat growing section, but our experience indicates that it may be successfully grown.

Last winter, in December, after gathering my cotton from an ordinary piece of pine land, on one and one-fortieth acres, I broadcast one load of cotton seed, two sacks ash element and one bushel rust proof wheat, and turned all under together, breaking the ground thoroughly with turn plows into four foot beds, thus leaving a water furrow every four feet. From this I gathered 27 bushels wheat.

I shall make another experiment this year to test whether the yield should be attributed to the drainage or to the ash element alone.

This year I used about 13 bushels cotton seed and two sacks ash element per acre on nearly seven acres, from which I gathered seven good wagon loads of oats. The same land had been planted in oats two years prior without any fertilizers. The total yield that year was one ordinary load.

N. B.—I omitted to say, in the proper place, that my oats were sowed in broad lands.
